EDITOR'S TABLE

"Our Dan" and his dramatic company left Liverpool for the River Plate yesterday a week. They will stop in Rio for some time, to divert the British community there, and then come on here, subsequently going to Rosario and Chile.

The Lord Mayor is keeping his eye on the Pomo nuisance in Carnival, and has sent a note to the Council proposing to abolish it after next year's Carnival. Why after next year's Saturnalia? Better wipe it out at once. Crumwell has made his fortune out of the article, so it won't do his interest to abolish it.

Several brilliant intellects, says an American paper, are now engaged in inventing new names for old colors in dress materials for next season.

After working sixteen hours on the following two weeks, has succeeded in obtaining new names for two tints, viz., "opera nose" and "kicked dog." The latter is a yell, of course.

Flags give a deal of trouble in these "commas." The latest flag now is the "Outer Roads," where an Austria "barque" is using temporary duty as a pylon, till a successor can be found for the old Vanguardia. The captain of the barque refuses to hoist the Argentine flag, or any other but the Austrian, and hence the difficulty.

The following paragraph from an exchange, in reference to the peculiarly odd speech of some prominent English orators is amusing, if not instructive.

"An American clergyman, Dr. J. L. Stanton, who has spent several years in England, has been exhibiting in the columns of the New York Independent the following methods and peculiarities of some of our public speakers. He thinks, of course, that most of them have a terribly bad accent; and he points to Mr. Thomas Hughes, Q.C., as being the worst orator to whom he has ever listened. Mr. Hughes, he declares, uniformly stutters over the final 's' in such words as morning and laughing, and pronounces southern as 'sotheren' and also to the late Mr. Spenser, who used to discard the final 'g' of Stanton has a quarrel with Lord Derby because that eminent statesman and scholar one day inconsistently pronounced either as either or neither as neither; but he eulogizes Cardinal Manning, who always gives to the diphthong in those words the long sound which is commonly given to it in America. The late Archbishop of Canterbury, according to the critic, was in the habit of speaking of contemporary instead of contemporary, and if the same authority may be trusted, Dr. Spenser, no Englishman, save Mr. Spenser, said, 'I can say no, the invariable makeshift entry being 'No.' As for Dr. Joseph Parker, Gallie is denounced as a man who is a dilettante law—and a very bad one—unto himself; and he is specially charged with talking of chapters when he means chapters. Mr. Spenser's chief fault seems to be that he says 'command' and 'great' instead of 'command' and 'great.' He does not draw, neither do the brothers Wilberforce; but Canon Farrar and the Bishop of Roches, Broomer, do, and Dean Stanley did, and Dr. P. Stanton ingeniously supposes that this peculiar weakness among English preachers is the result of the provision of the Liturgy that allows certain things to be said or sung."

The proceedings in Congress are as dry as dust, day after day. The report of one long list of pensions or money in money is almost of no use. The Messrs. That & Co., and Dr. P. Stanton, in the Senate yesterday, something lively was expected in connection with the burning question of the day.

The day.
